AN INTERESTING CONTEST.

The pending Dominion election in Haldimand county, which has been vacant since the death of Mr. DAVID THOMPSON, last February, will be one of much interest. It has been represented in parliament for many years by Liberals, and at one time was considered to be as sound a Liberal constituency as existed in Ontario. Gerrymander, however, stepped in and took from the county two of its most pronounced Liberal townships, which added to others taken from Lincoln and Welland, formed part of the newly created county of Monck. In Haldimand at the general election of 1882 Mr. THOMPSON'S majority was 126 over his opponent, Mr. MERRITT, who is again the Conservative candidate. Sortly after Mr. THOMPSON'S death Mr. LANDERKIN, M. P., for South Grey, moved that a writ issue for a new election to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. THOMPSON'S death. The premier declined complying with the request, asserting that as it would not be likely the new member would take his seat during that session there was no reason for haste in the matter. The recent election in Chambly, however, formed so conspicuous a contrast to Sir JOHN'S assertion that much comment has been made thereon. It now appears that the registered Indian vote in Haldimand under the new Franchise Act is 125—all of which it is hoped by the government will be polled for its nominee. The nomination takes place next Wednesday, and the election on the 8th Sept. More than usual interest centres in this contest, as it is the first that has taken place in Ontario since the execution of RIEL. By-elections are often seized upon by the party triumphant as heralding the general feeling of the country, usually without much reason. In the case of Haldimand, however, there would be something significant in its electing a Conservative. Mr. C. W. COULTER, a clever young lawyer, of Cayuga, is the Liberal candidate.

IRELAND'S CONDITION.

Gladstone's Views Supported by a Million and a Quarter of the Electors of Great Britain.

In the House of Commons during the debate on Friday evening, Mr. Sexton challenged Lord Randolph Churchill to deny that land purchase formed part of the government's scheme. Mr. Chamberlain, he continued, was a master of the useful art of suppressing any part of his case which did not serve his purpose. Such a practice was not calculated to give a politican a permanent advantage in the eyes of English gentlemen. The British government party were answerable for the wrongdoing of the Irish landlords. Mr. Gladstone had made the landlords the most brilliant offer they had ever had. When that offer was spurned and used to bring discredit upon the offender there was no obligation in order to renew it. If there were any more talk about honor Mr. Gladstone could doubtless say as Lady Teazle said to Charles Surface, had we not better leave honor out of the question? Certainly, Mr. Gladstone would never make Mr. Chamberlain judge or custodian of his honor. Mr. Sexton believed that Liberals of the future would be party to the plundering of Ireland. Mr. Gladstone's land purchase scheme was secured by every penny of the public revenue of Ireland. This was the security of seven million pounds yearly. True union would have resulted from the adoption of that policy, and no unnatural combination of intriguing politicians could long delay that union. The appointing of General Buller would not promote such union, but would give Ireland the character of a foreign country. Chamberlain, despite the condition of Ireland, was content to wait as long as the government wished. If Chamberlain had lived in the time of Nero, he would have played a second fiddle while Rome was burning. In conclusion Sexton said that the Parnellites would counsel Irishmen to stand by each other and not be intimidated by fear of combinations. They would remind Irishmen that Gladstone's great effort to promote peace between the two countries was supported by a million and a quarter of the British people.

SHE NODDIT TO ME.

The following poem, which recently appeared in the Bon Accord, a weekly comic journal published in Aberdeen, attracted the notice of the Queen, and Her Majesty wrote expressing a desire to be furnished with the name of the author, who is said to be Mr. A. Dewa Willock, of that city. It is founded on the fact of an old woman standing at her cottage door sees the Royal carriage passing, and has the good fortune to obtain a bow and a smile from Her Majesty, hence the title, "She Noddit to Me."

I'm but an auld body
Living up in Deeside
In a twa-roomed bit hoosie,
Wi' a loofa, beside;
Wi' my coo an' my grumphy
I'm as happy's a bee,
But I'm far prooder noo
Since she noddit to me!

I'm nae see far past wi't—
I'm gie'rig an' halo,
Can plant two-three tawties,
An' look after my kale;
An' when oor Queen passes
I'm out to see,
Gin by luck she micht notice
And nod oot to me!

But I've nae been unlucky,
And the blinds were aye doon.
Till last week the time
O' her veesit cam' roon.
I waved my bit apron
As brisk's I could dee,
An' the Queen lauched fu' kindly.
An' noddit to me!

My son s'eeps in Egypt—
It's nae ease to fruit—
An' yet when I think o't
I'm sair I'm to greet
She may feel for my sorrow—
She's a mither ye see—
An' may be she kent o't
When she noddit to me!

It is told in St. Paul that the children in Minneapolis, its near-by and hatred rival, have refused to read the Bible in the public schools because it is "filled full of talk about St. Paul," while from Genesis to Revelation there is no mention made of Minneapolis.

RAILWAY MAGNATES.

Mr. R. B. Angus, of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Party

Reach Victoria—A Direct Trip from Britin to the Pacific.

Mr. R. B. Angus, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, accompanied by Miss Angus, arrived from the East last evening. Mr. Angus' name is a familiar one to every reader of Canadian newspapers, not alone for his connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway, but also for the prominent financial position he occupied for many years as head of the greatest private banking institution in the world.

Mr. Angus is a Scotchman, a native of Bathgate, a town situate in Linlithgowshire, about half-way between Edinburgh and Glasgow, and at present in the 55th year of his age. At the tender age of sixteen he left the paternal roof for Manchester, England, where he secured a position as a junior clerk in the Manchester District bank. Remaining in this institution until he acquired a knowledge of banking, he came to Canada, and secured a position in the Bank of Montreal. His ascension to a front position here was rapid, as at an early age he developed rare traits of a thorough knowledge of finances and banking. The position of manager of the New York and Chicago branches were occupied by him. Then the office of general inspector, giving him a great knowledge of the operations and ramifications of this vast monetary concern. For many years he filled the office of manager of the Montreal office, and on the retirement of Mr. King—the terror of New York's Wall streets brokers, Mr. Angus became the general manager, remaining in that position for many years at a salary of $25,000 a year with bonuses and commissions added, until he withdrew to assume the management of the St. Paul and Manitoba railway in 1878. Had Mr. Angus resigned without embarking in anyother business his yearly allowance would have been a large one. However, in company with the then Mr. Geo. Stephen, president of the Bank of Montreal; Hon. Donald A. Smith, one of its directors; Mr. Duncan McIntyre and J. J. Hall, of St. Paul, a controlling interest in the capital stock of the St. Paul and Manitoba road was secured at 25 cents in the pound, which shares rose afterwards to such a value that a fortune was realized by these gentlemen on their venture.

The money made in this scheme was the nucleus for the formation of the Canadian Pacific railway syndicate. In this company Mr. Angus occupied the position of vice president, as well as being a member of the executive board for some years. Mr. Angus, it is known, had much to do in connection with the floating of the company's bonds and stock, as well as its financial operations generally, that being his special duties, and to his skill, experience and ability is largely due the credit of the success that has attended the company's financial movements. It is said that Her Majesty wished to confer on Mr. Angus a mark of her appreciation of his valuable services, but that he declined the proferred honor. He has a family and is thoroughly domesticated. Is a Presbyterian, as are his colleagues Sir Geo. Stephens and Sir Donald A. Smith. Every member of the original syndicate from Montreal were Presbyterians. His business calls him frequently abrond, so that he is not at home much to enjoy the comfort of the luxurious residence he recently built in Montreal. His visit to this province will necessarily be a brief one.

GAUDAUR IN ENGLAND.

America's Champion Sculler Reaches England and Goes Into Training

Jacob Gaudaur, champion sculler of America, and Albert Hamm, of Halifax, his partner and trainer, have reached London. They enjoyed their ocean trip very much, and had good weather all the time, there having been only two bad days in the eleven of the voyage. Neither of the men was sick, and soon after sailing from Boston they rigged up a rowing machine, and had plenty of exercise, so that Gaudaur arrived here in good condition. They immediately started for Putney, where they took quarters at the Fox and Hounds Tavern. Their boats are on the way from Liverpool, and will reach Putney, to-morrow when they will be rigged, and the men will take a paddle on the Thames, where Ross, Teemer, Lee, Beach and other scullers are practising daily for the International sweepstakes race the latter part of this month. During the afternoon of to-day Gaudaur went up the river a bit and stopped at Barnes', where he called on William Beach, the champion of the world, with whom he is to arrange a match to-morrow. Beach welcomed Gaudaur with great cordiality, and they appeared mutually pleased with each other. They fraternized immediately, and the champions had a long chat about rowing in America and Australia.

Wallace Ross and Geo. W. Lee having issued a general challenge to row in double sculls any two oarsmen in the world, Gaudaur and Hamm will, in all probability, accept the challenge, the race to be rowed after the contest for the championship has been decided.

Gladstone has issued a pamphlet containing his views on the Irish question as already given in the House of Commons. The excellence of its style and the power of its oratory are generally commented upon.

The circular said to have been issued by M. DeGiers and published morning is authoritatively declared to be apocryphal, and to have emanated from the Nieuweiner Tagblatt.

DISEASED CATTLE.

A Whole Herd of Valuable Imported Cattle Being Reduced to Ashes.

Dr. McEachren, chief of Dominion Inspector of quarantine regulations, was in Quebec last week superintending the slaughter and cremating of Mr. McCrae's infected herd of cattle. The large kiln erected for the purpose having been completed and the work of slaughter and cremation commenced yesterday; by evening nine cattle had thus been disposed of, and it is believed that by about Tuesday the whole herd will have been reduced to ashes. The sheds occupied by the infected cattle and all the manure in quarantine, amounting to over three thousand loads will also be burned. Mr. McCrae, of Guelph, the owner of the cattle in question, was in town yesterday, and was not unnaturally anxious to see his stock. He was refused admittance, however, by the authorities, who allow nobody to enter the premises, but the actual superintendents and attendants of the cattle. Mr. McCrae was quite satisfied with the reasons given for refusing to admit him, fully recognizing the necessity of every precaution being taken to prevent the spread of the disease. The symptoms of the disease have not yet appeared in the herd of Mr. Andrew Allen, which was in contact with Mr. McCrae's cattle on the passage across the Atlantic, but it is the opinion of the authorities that the whole herd will have to be slaughtered.

OUT OF SIGHT.

Tremendous Drubbing Given to Leith to an Opponent of Mr. Gladstone.

As many of the readers of THE TIMES are aware Mr. Gladstone was elected for Midlothian and for Leith. He resigned his seat in the latter, where an election took place on the 20th inst., in which Mr. Ferguson, Gladstonian, was overwhelmingly successful. He polled 4,404 votes against 1,258 for Mr. McGregor, and 1,499 for Jacks. McGregor and Jacks ran as Unionists. Mr. Jacks was returned as a Liberal to the last parliament by a majority of 4,780 in a total poll of 8,840. He opposed Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill and entered the canvass for election as a Unionist. No one dared oppose him in the district until just before balloting day, when the premier himself entered the field as a Home Rule candidate. This caused such a stampede from the Jacks' ranks that he abandoned the contest, permitting Mr. Gladstone to be elected unopposed. When Mr. Gladstone, being also elected for Midlothian, chose to sit for the latter place, Mr. Jacks had the temerity to again enter the field, despite the protests of his friends who predicted his political ruin, arguing that the Scotchmen of Leith would simply bury him out of sight if he again attempted to go back to parliament to oppose Mr. Gladstone. Jacks' vote is 4,856 less than he received last November.

AGRICULTURAL SHOWS.

Identifying Exhibitors at Exhibitions—Systems Adopted in the East.

A Change Desirable in the Mode Pursued in British Columbia.

That a change in the system of entering, ticketing and awarding prize cards on live stock and other exhibits at the agricultural and industrial shows in British Columbia is desirable, every one admits. The plan followed here has been tried elsewhere and found to be defective. In Manitoba it has been in vogue for some years. The Manitoban of a recent issue writing on the subject says:

Some objection was taken at the Provincial Exhibition at St. Boniface last year to the plan of having all exhibits labelled with the names and addresses of the exhibitors, the reason doubtless being that it was the first time such a plan was adopted in this province. The secretary-treasurer of the Board of Agriculture recently corresponded with the secretaries of a number of other societies to find out the practice at their exhibitions, and the replies received, from which a few extracts are here given, show that the plan of putting the names on the tickets is uniformly adopted. Unless such a system is practised there will be endless confusion, and exhibitors would lose the opportunity of having their names known to the general public, as it would be impossible to place the names on all exhibits after the judging had been completed. The following extracts from letters will give an idea of the plan in other places:

Secretary of Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario: "We always write the name of the exhibitors on the entry paper; the judges place the cards as they go round and write the exhibitor's name on them also. We fill up the class and section."

Secretary of Industrial Exhibition, Toronto: "We place the names on the tickets in all classes. We left off the names for one year in some classes, but found that one of the principal objects of the exhibition was nullified by so doing. The representatives of the press and the public were loud in their complaints because the names of the exhibitors were not on the articles and they could not tell to whom they belonged. My idea is that it is a mistake to leave the names off the cards, besides it is an insult to the gentlemen whom you appoint as judges, as much as to say they cannot be trusted if the names are on to do justice. I find that no matter what you do, or what course you pursue, you will always find grumblers among the unsuccessful exhibitors. In most classes our judges are supplied with the prize tickets filled up all but the name and address of the exhibitor, and they place them on themselves, but in extras they have to report to the office before getting their tickets. In some exhibitions a clerk is sent round with the judges, and he fills in the names, and places the tickets on the goods, but this is rather expensive. We tried one year sending out the tickets after the judges handed in their books, but the clerks and superintendents had such a difficulty in finding the right articles, and especially in the case of stock, that we decided the best way was to let the judges put them on themselves. Of course in paying the prizes we are wholly governed by our books, and not by the fact that any particular person has a prize ticket."

Secretary of Central Fair, Hamilton, Ont., wrote, transmitting specimen of entry card, which has places for name, etc., of exhibitor. He wrote: "Some of our judges affix the prize tickets, and some are sent from my office after having the exhibitor's name and address written thereon."

Secretary of Permanent Exhibition Committee of Quebec Province:—"I enclose tickets as requested. The smaller one is used for live stock, the other is used for manufactured products, etc. In the latter case we find it always best to put the name of the exhibitor; it would be useless to omit it, for he always has his cards and circulars and signs by which to make himself known. Even in the case of live stock I would feel disposed to put the exhibitor's name; for if judges are disposed to be crooked, they can easily know whose horse or cow they are judging, even if the name be not there. Exhibitors themselves are always standing about, and make that known. I am strongly in favor of the judges themselves affixing the prize tickets; it is the most expeditious and satisfactory plan."

Secretary of Western Fair, London, Ont.,—"The Western fair association prior to 18— had the names of all exhibitors excluded from the entry cards. Under the new management inaugurated in 18— it was decided to put the names of exhibitors upon the entry tickets. One principal reason for this course was the fact that a large proportion of the exhibitors entered their goods mostly for advertising purposes, and that an injustice was being done them by rigidly excluding their names from appearing anywhere till the judging was done, which as a rule is not accomplished till the exhibition is half over. It was also thought that if reputable judges were selected that no fear need be felt as to improper decisions."

TERRIBLE EARTHQUAKE.

Over Three Hundred People Swallowed Up in Greece.

ATHENS, Aug. 28.—A terrible earthquake has occurred in Greece, 800 lives were lost.

ATHENS, Aug. 28.—Greece has again been visited by an earthquake, which has been most disastrous in the Morea, and in which the loss of life, according to the best information, reaches the enormous figure of three hundred. The village of Pyrgo and the town of Philistra, both situated on the western coast of Morea, were the chief sufferers. In Pyrgo not a house is left standing, while Philistra is almost swept away from the face of the globe. Shocks were experienced throughout the whole of Greece, in a greater or less degree. In the town of Zante, every house is damaged and the inhabitants fled in terror to the open country. Several towns in the interior were visited by the earthquake, but not to any serious extent. Napies, Brinsini, Foggia, Caserta and Taranto were of the number.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 28.—Violent shocks of earthquake have been experienced here and other parts of Egypt, causing terror among the natives, but so far as known doing no serious damage.

ROUGH TREATMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The Russians have refused to allow Prince Alexander a saloon carriage or a servant, and only released him after the Emperor William had telegraphed to the Czar on the subject. Turkey is massing her troops on the Roumelian frontier. Daily councils are being held at Constantinople to consider the question.

GOING BACK.

LEMNURO, Austria, Aug. 28.—Prince Alexander leaves here to-day for Bulgaria. He will go via Guirgevo, Ruomania, and expects to reach Bulgarian territory by to-morrow. His brothers, Francis and Ludwig, are with him and will be his traveling companions.

TO RESTORE ORDER.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—A cabinet council was held, at which it was asserted a pourparlar was issued to obtain the sense of the powers on the advisability of holding a conference for the purpose of restoring order in Bulgaria.

THE BLACKER KETTLE OF THE TWO.

The organs supporting the Ottawa government are loud in their condemnation of the Ontario government in not filling the vacancies that exist in the office of registrar for Carleton; the shrievalties for Wellington and Lincoln, and some other minor offices throughout that province. A correspondent draws attention to the fact that SIR JOHN MACDONALD is very dilatory in making appointments. This is a circumstance well known to every person taking the slightest interest in the political affairs of the country, and it is justly argued that before fault can found with Mr. MOWAT attention should be given to affairs coming specially within the purview of the Federal government and the organs supporting it. Sir JOHN has kept four senatorships dangling before a number of his followers for some time. Two sessions have passed without these vacancies being filled, indicating an utter contempt for the upper chamber on the part of the first minister; because if he considered the Senate of any service as a legislative body he would fill vacancies in that House as promptly as those occurring in the House of Commons. But senatorships are retained as prizes for good little "boys" of the BEATY stamp. Then the Lieut.-Governorship of Ontario has been vacant for over a year, and there is also a vacancy on the bench of the Ontario court of appeal, and another on the Nova Scotia Supreme Court bench. The customs collectorship at Hamilton has not been filled, as Mr. KILVERT wants the place, but intends holding on to his seat in parliament until his term is out. There is no post-office inspector in Quebec, and the government organ there declares that the postal service of the district is demoralized because of the government's failure to appoint a successor to the late Mr. SHEPPARD. The Lieut.-Governorship of Ontario has been allowed to drift along until the present has entered upon his third year beyond the regular term. So far as our own Lieut.-Governorship is concerned an appointment should have been made months ago. In order to keep all the applicants in line the bait is kept dangling before them. We venture the prophecy that no appointment will be made until after the next general election. Hints dropped by Sir JOHN while in this city would warrant us in asserting that assurances have been Lieut.-Governor CORNWALL to keep himself easy and contented until next spring, by which time it is quite probable the elections will be held. Many, we confess, will receive this announcement with a feeling of disappointment, for it was hoped that Sir JOHN's presence in the province would have the effect of clearing up the difficulty that existed amongst the applicants for this coveted office. It is said that the feeling is now more bitter than ever, and the probabilities are that the office will be given to an outsider—an eastern man. Such a state of affairs prevails throughout the Dominion, and when ministers make up their minds to fill a few of these vacancies under their control, it will be time enough to look around in order to ascertain in what condition the Ontario political kitchen is in, or give advice as to how it should be run.

THE Channel tunnel scheme, if it found some earnest champions in England, also met with some better antagonists. It has been succeeded by a project which, if carried out, will make the the union of England and Ireland independent of any attempts at separation. This project, which is not altogether novel in conception, is to bore a tunnel from Port Patrick, in Scotland, to Donaghadee, in Ireland. As our readers are aware, the Lowlanders and their Irish kinsmen are often, on cler days, within seeing distance of each other from these points, which are only about some twenty miles apart. A shaft is, it is said, to be sunk at once, to test the strata. The cost of the enterprise has been estimated at $25,000,000—the land approaches on either side standing some $5,000,000 more. The undertaking is not without interest for us, in connection with our Pacific railway, as it would still further lessen the time distance from London to Halifax, and so over the whole route. The distance from Moville, where the Allan steamships now call, to London will by the tunnel be 450 miles, or eleven hours' rail.

BENEFACTIONS BY AMERICANS.

A large number of prominent American millionaires have made valuable gifts or bequests for the benefit of the general public their names being recalled by the New York Sun. Among these were GEO. PEABODY, who died in 1869. Mr. PEABODY gave away in conspicuous public benefactions over $7,000,000 during his lifetime, $2,500,000, of which were given as a fund to establish lodging houses for the London poor, and $2,100,000 as "a Southern educational fund." JOHN JACOB ASTOR, who died in 1848, left $400,000 to found the Astor Library, and his son WILLIAM B. ASTOR, who died in 1875, bequeathed $250,000 to that institution. JOHN HOPKINS, who died in Baltimore, 1873, gave to the university and the hospital, which respectively bear his name, some $8,000,000. This was the largest public bequest yet made by any American. Like Mr. TILDEN, JOHN HOPKINS died a bachelor. A. T. STEWART, who died in 1876, leaving a widow and no children, founded Garden City, on Long Island, to provide homes for industrious mechanics, and a home for working girls on Park Avenue, New York. The latter has been turned into an hotel too expensive for working people, and Garden City is not a realization of the Stewart plan. JAMES LICK, who died in San Francisco in 1876, before his death placed in the hands of trustees large sums for various public purposes. Among these were $700,000 to found an observatory, with the most powerful telescope ever made, $540,000 for a California school of mechanical arts, $750,000 for free public baths in San Francisco, $60,000 for a monument to FRANCIS SCOTT KEY, the author of the "Star Spangled Banner," and $100,000 for a group of bronze statuary in San Francisco, representing the history of California. His public gifts in all amounted to about $2,000,000. The VANDERBILTS have done something for the public. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, who died in 1877, gave during his life $1,000,000 to found Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn. WILLIAM H. VANDERBILT, his son, who died last December, gave large gifts to the Vanderbilt University, to the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and also undertook the erection of a handsome club house for his railway employees. JAMES LENOX, who died in New York in 1880, one of the five wealthiest men in that city, expended about $1,000,000 on the Presbyterian hospital, New York, and about $500,000 in building Lenox library. It contains books, sculptures and paintings of rare value to which, however, admission is so difficult that the value to the public is small. Among other large gifts and bequests should be noted those of GIRARD, of Philadelphia, who left more than $2,000,000, together with a plot of ground, to found Girard College in that city; STEVENS, of Hoboken, who bequeathed $1,000,000 to complete the Stevens Battery, and $1,000,000 for the Stevens Institute at Hoboken; ROOSEVELT, of New York, who left about a million to found the hospital that bears his name; and WILLIAM W. CORCORAN, of Washington, who has given about $2,000,000 during his life to establish an art gallery and a home for decayed gentlewomen there. To these must be added the munificent bequests of SAMUEL J. TILDEN, amounting to $4,000,000. Thus within a comparatively brief space of years some fourteen American millionaires have given, in public benefactions, from a quarter of a million to eight millions each, above $33,000,000 in all. Many smaller bequests and gifts of other wealthy donors would go to swell this aggregate very greatly.

IT WILL BE PROCRASTINATION.

Since the opening of the Commons the leaders of the Conservative party have made it very evident, from their speeches, that their policy towards Ireland is to be one of procrastination and masterly inactivity. They propose to allow matters to drift. The landlords are to be permitted to evict their unfortunate tenantry at will. Lord RANDOLPH CHURCHILL has given them notice that in the work of eviction they will have the support of the whole Imperial forces. Famine is threatened again in Ireland owing to the failure of the crops and the exorbitant rents extorted from the people, and the only remedy proposed by the government is a royal commission. It is not to be expected that land reforms will be granted by a landlord government. The speech of Sir WILLIAM HARCOURT in the House of Commons yesterday shows clearly that the Liberal party of Great Britain intend to stand by their Home Rule policy. They are not in the least disheartened by their recent defeat, but propose to go on with the work of educating public opinion, believing that their policy is certain to be adopted in a very short time. A few years ago Sir WILLIAM HARCOURT was regarded as more of a Tory than either Lord HARTINGTON or the DUKE OF ARGYLE, but his views have changed wonderfully and now he is a thorough going reformer. The proposal of the government to appoint a commission of enquiry is simply a make-shift to gain time. Mr. O'CONNOR has pointed out that the proposal to spend public money in feeding the unfortunate victims of Irish landlordism will, if carried out, cost England more than Mr. GLADSTONE's scheme, and Sir WILLIAM HARCOURT truthfully declared that the only way to pacify Ireland was to remove the causes of popular discontent. But then the Tories hope to keep themselves in power by provoking discontent and insurrection in Ireland.

At the Montreal Caledonian games on Saturday, J. D. McColl broke the record of "putting heavy shot" by sending it 37 feet 9 inches—five inches further than any previous record.

Victoria, Saturday, Aug. 28, 1886.

A ROYAL SYMPHONY.

Everybody who knew Mr. Doublebass agreed that it was entirely his own fault that he had not achieved a distinguished position in the musical world. His musical gifts were beyond question. He was a perfect master of several instruments, had a profound knowledge of the theoretical branch of his art, and was in addition to this a man of wide reading and some literary power. But at the age of 50, he was engaged in a desperate struggle for existence. The reason was not difficult to discover. Mr. Doublebass had sundry views about the nature of art and the duties of an artist, which, however sublime in themselves, are conducive neither to personal popularity nor pecuniary profit. He had a constitutional horror of humbug in every shape, and an unfortunate facility in blurting out his opinions in defiance of conventionality and prejudice. By these means he had ruined one after another of the chances life had brought him. He had failed as a professor at a well-known musical institution by a remorseless severity with which he kept his pupils at the groundwork of their studies before allowing them to proceed to higher things. He had made himself impossible as a conductor by his resolute refusal to have anything to do with works which did not satisfy his high standard of artist excellence. He had lost his post as musical critic on one of the London dailies by his ferocious onslaught upon one or two distinguished amateurs. In the natural course of things, therefore, Mr. Doublebass sank lower and lower in the world until, meeting with bad health in addition to his other reverses, he was at last compelled to take a second fiddle in a well-known London orchestra, while his daughter Maggie—for by this time Mr. Doublebass was a widower—extracted what addition could be made to their scanty means out of a maiden lady lodger.

One wet December evening the little gentleman came home rather later than usual to his modest mansion in the neighborhood of Park street, Camden Town. Maggie was, as usual, waiting up for him, and took from him his fiddle-case and dripping overcoat—owing to circumstances beyond his control, Mr. Doublebass had been out without an umbrella. The old man turned into the little front parlor, and, without many remarks, fell to work upon the fragment of Dutch cheese, the household loaf and the half-pint of beer spread out for his refreshment.

"Any news, Maggie?" he inquired presently.

"Yes, great news, father," said the girl, looking up from her work; "I have had a visitor."

"Friendly or hostile?" asked Mr. Doublebass, who had a vivid recollection that the "water-rates" had called a few days previously, and promised a repetition of his visit shortly.

"A friend," in a gay tone. "He said he had good news for you, and left this note, with the message that you must be at home to-morrow without fail." Mr. Doublebass opened the note which his daughter handed to him, and read as follows:

"DEAR D.—Have you still got the symphony by you, about which you spoke to me some weeks ago? If you have, I think I can find an opening for it, provided you will be satisfied with a 10-pound note. But I must see you about it at once. Will call at 10 a. m. to-morrow. Yours,

"SOAPLEY SMART."

"Bless the man, what does he scent himself like that for? Why, the very paper he touches smells like a barber's-shop. Give me the tobacco, Mag," cried the old man, tossing the note from him with a sniff.

"Hadn't I better get the symphony, too, father?" asked Maggie.

"Bah! what does he know about the symphony? It's not the sort of stuff he wants," said Mr. Doublebass, contemptuously. "However, I suppose he must see it. Just get it down, Maggie, and I'll see that it is all in order before I go to bed." Maggie had no difficulty in laying her hands upon the precious MS. in question, which had been the companion of their troubles for many years, and Mr. Doublebass' solace under many trials. The girl was, indeed, scarcely less interested in the symphony than the old man himself, and knew enough of her father to guess that, in spite of his petulant tone, the prospect of his work being given to the world at last elated him not a little.

Punctually at 10 o'clock the next morning Mr. Soapley Smart drove up to the door. He was by no means a gentleman of that type with which eminence in the musical profession is commonly associated. His clothes were of a highly fashionable cut and material; he had an eye-glass in one eye; his hair, which was yellow and scanty, was cut short and parted in the middle, and he wore a heavy mustache and two little tufts of whisker. At an early age of his musical career he had achieved fame by the publication of a seductive waltz of a simple character, called "Ecoutez-moi," and two or three intensely pathetic ballads, the best known of which is "The Angel and the Kiss." Having an extensive connection in fashionable circles, he had rapidly advanced into the higher walks of art. He was the habitual associate of aristocratic amateurs, performed at smoking concerts, where even royalty smoked cigars and played the violin, conducted an orchestral society for membership of which a title was the one indispensable qualification. During the last twelve months this talented gentleman had on more than one occasion shown a friendly interest in Mr. Doublebass, and it was to him that the elder musician owed his seat in the orchestra where he now played. Mr. Doublebass, who, to tell the truth, entertained a profound contempt for Soapley Smart and all his works, was quite at a loss to account for these acts of friendship, though possibly if Miss Doublebass had chosen she might have enlightened her father on that point.

"I haven't many minutes to spare," said Mr. Smart in his airy manner, as he took a seat. "Don't run away, Miss Doublebass. I may have to talk secrets, but nothing, I am sure, but what I may trust you with. Now, then, where is the magnum opus?"

Mr. Doublebass handed the MS. to his visitor.

"Rather bulky, isn't it?" observed Mr. Smart, poising the work in his hands. "I hope it isn't too long, though that's a defect soon remedied. What's this?" (the critic had rapidly turned over a page or two). "'Allegro,' 'Andante con moto,' 'Scherzo.' This looks like Philharmonic form, doesn't it, Doublebass? We don't want anything too serious, you know. But perhaps I had better talk business first. I have told you I can find an opening for this symphony, Doublebass, and that you will be well paid for it. But there are certain conditions. I don't want it for publication in the ordinary way. It is to be prepared in public, but are you prepared not only to part with the pro-all the expectations which had been formed concerning it, and provoked the greatest enthusiasm. The prince of Gotten-Penschen was reserved for the second part; and when his royal highness appeared after the interval with his trombone, he was received with a perfect ovation. Sir Boyler Potts had composed a tasteful little morceau for the occasion, and the prince, though a little nervous, got through it very creditably, with the exception of a trifling hitch when the august performer had to stop and perform an operation sometimes necessary with the instrument in question. The symphony came almost immediately afterward. The opening movement (allegro) was listened to with rapt attention and followed by a volley of applause. The next movement (andante con moto) and the third (scherzo) created a still more favorable impression. But the climax was reached with the fourth movement, which, opening with a quaint moderato in a minor key, wound up with a rattling presto, which completely brought down the house, and roused the more demonstrative portion of the audience to the utmost pitch of enthusiasm. Amid deafening applause the royal composer came forward and bowed right and left, with a modesty which, under the circumstances, did him great credit, and the applause continued until Sir Boyler Potts took up his baton and gave the last movement over again.

Early the following morning Mr. Doublebass, who had resisted all the entreaties of his daughter and Mr. Smart to be present at the concert, sat in his armchair while Maggie read to him an eloquent critique of the previous night's performance from The St. James Advertiser. There was a grim smile on the old man's face as his daughter read the following passage: "In a word his royal highness has given proof of the musical genius of the very highest order. In the wealth of thematic ideas, no less than in the mastery displayed in the musical treatment, the opening allegro recalls Beethoven in his moments of loftiest inspiration. The second movement is characterized by a scholarly tunefulness distinctly suggestive of Mendelssohn. The humor of the scherzo was irresistible, and the brilliancy and verve of the finale could have been surpassed by no other master than "Papa" Haydn, while, beyond and above these, there runs through the whole work a conception of musical possibilities of which the great masters with all their gifts were hardly capable."

Before Maggie had finished, there was a sharp knock at the door, and Soapley Smart hurried in.

"Ah, Miss Doublebass," he said, "you have The Advertiser, I see. I hope your father is satisfied with that. I think I laid it on well. But look here, Doublebass, this will amuse you. Here's old Boston, of The Morning Cablegraph, been having a fligh at H. R. H., and sold himself prettily. That shows you what musical criticism is worth." As he spoke, Mr. Smart pointed with his finger to a passage in the newspaper which he handed to Mr. Doublebass. The latter read as follows:

"We are not aware whether the 'symphony' by H. R. H., the prince of Gotten-Penschen was intended as a musical joke, but, if so, the point appeared to be missed by the majority of the audience. The work is apparently founded on a series of music-hall and street melodies, though the subjects are worked up with an amount of skill and technical resource for which we should have hardly have given his royal highness credit."

"Well?" said Mr. Doublebass, handing back the paper.

"Don't you think that a pretty piece of impertinence?" asked Smart.

"On the contrary, I am glad to find that there is one musical critic in London who knows what he is talking about."

"How so?" asked Smart.

"Well, I can tell you how," said Mr. Doublebass. "Look here, Mr. Soapley Smart, you made me one of the most insulting proposals that was ever made to an artist or a gentleman. You took me for a knave as well as a fool. It so happened that I wanted money very badly, and I thought I saw a way of being even with you. See, here is the rough scheme of the prince of Gotten-Penschen's precious symphony. The principal subject of the allegro, which reminds you so of Beethoven, is 'Pop Goes the Weasel,' thinly disguised in modern orchestration. The theme of the Mendelssohnian adagio, stripped of certain variations and the embellishments, may be known to you under the title 'Wait Till the Clouds Roll By.' The scherzo and presto are founded respectively upon these inspired melodies 'Tiddy-fol-lol,' and 'The Masher King,' worked up with new matter and entirely original orchestral effects. Now, who has been made a fool of, Mr. Smart?"

* * * * * * * * *

Luckily for Mr. Doublebass Sir Boyler Potts had been one of the few who had discovered the real nature of the prince's symphony. Having a keen appreciation of a joke, and being struck by the musical merits of the composition, he had inquired and learned from Soapley Smart the real facts as to the authorship. Very shortly after the concert Sir Boyler found an opportunity of making Mr. Doublebass' acquaintance, with the result that the little gentleman's original symphony was soon after performed in public and achieved a success nearly as great and quite as genuine as that of the prince of Gotten-Penschen.—London Truth.

Habit of Disregarding Proper Sleep.

In persons of vigorous constitution the habit of disregarding proper sleep, and the insomnia which springs from it, may go on for several years without any apparent bad effect. In time, however, it is certain to produce its natural consequences. The first indications of danger are irritability of mind and feverish excitement, followed by depression, pallor, and deficiency of appetite. These are succeeded by fits of unconsciousness, in which the affected person positively sleeps, and, it may be, sleeps soundly, without himself knowing the fact. In this way he gets rest, which, for a little while may give a certain measure of relief; but soon the nervous failure increases, and one of two results succeeds. He either falls into a sleep which becomes a coma, and terminates in death, or he continues sleepless, unless artificially made to sleep by narcotics, and with progressing failing powers sinks into paralysis, to succumb from that affection. In exceptional cases the insomniac makes a fair recovery.—Field of Diseases.

Doctor at the Dinner Table.

At the dinner table: "Come, doctor, you are very skillful. I will give you the honor of carving." "With pleasure, madam." Immediately the doctor begins his task. He is very absent minded, and when he has finally made a deep cut in the leg of mutton, he stops, takes a roll of linen and some lint out of his pocket, and carefully bandages the wound. Then, after regarding it critically, he remarks with professional gravity, while the guests are stupefied with astonishment: "There, with rest and good care, there is nothing to fear."—New York Graphic.

Vanderbilt's Beautiful Winter Resort.

William K. Vanderbilt has bought Jekye island, one of the most beautiful off the Georgia coast, for a winter resort. It is about nine miles long and about two wide, and its whole length forms one of the most beautiful beaches of the Atlantic coast. Vanderbilt is much pleased with it. Andrew Carnegie, the millionaire iron king of Pennsylvania, now owns the extreme end of Cumberland island, adjoining Jekye, and has spent $25,000,000 in improving it, his house alone costing $150,000.—Boston Transcript.

DR. VANMONCISCAR,

THE WELL-KNOWN

SPECIALIST,

Proprietor & Consulting Physician of the Only Private Dispensary on the Pacific Coast, now permanently located at 132, 134, Third Street, Portland, Or.

DR. VANMONCISCAR has made the treatment of Private Diseases of Men a special study and practice for many years. Over 4000 cases treated yearly. Recent cases of private diseases cured in a short time. Ulcers, Humors and Blotches on Face or Body cured without giving Mercury or other Poisons. Mercury is the curse of the human race. Your children will suffer from its effects. Avoid it as you would avoid any deadly Drug, and use no more. These diseases are being cured at this Dispensary without Mercury.

DR. VANMONCISCAR

is a graduate of a regular Medical College, is well known over the United States and Canada by and it is a well known fact that for years he has confined himself to the study and treatment of Sexual and Chronic Diseases, thus giving him advantages few possess. Dr. Vanmonciscar addresses himself particularly to those who have already tried various physicians and remedies from whom they have received no benefits, and who, in fact, have done them more harm than good. Medicine, like all other sciences, is progressive, and every year shows proof of its advances. By a combination of remedies of great curative power, Dr. Vanmonciscar has so arranged his treatment that it will afford not only immediate relief, but permanent cures.

Thousands of Old and Young Men he has Cured.

YOUNG MEN

who are suffering from the effects of youthful indiscretions showing some of the following symptoms: Nervous and Physical Debility, Impotency (incapacity) Lost Manhood, Abuses of the system, Exhausted Vitality, Confusion of Ideas, Dull and Loss of Brilliancy to the Eye, Aversion to Society, Despondency, Pimples on the Face, Loss of Energy, and Frequency of Urinating. You may be in the first stages, but remember you are fast approaching the last. Do not let false pride and sham modesty deter you from attending to your ailments. Many a bright and naturally gifted young man, endowed with genius, has permitted his case to run on and on, until remorse racked his intellect, and finally death claimed its victim. Remember that "Procrastination is the thief of time." So lay aside your pride, and consult one who thoroughly understands your ailment, and who will know your case, and find permanent relief for an ailment that has made day a drudgery and night hideous. Thousands upon thousands of men in good standing in the social world, of prominence in the world are to-day suffering from the fruits of their doings, the seeds of which were sown during moments for thoughtlessness. Young man turn and gaze upon thy companion, or seek the mirror for proof to substantiate this fact. Oh! could he control the arm of Fate, or had he his life to live again, then I could not appeal to you more sincerely. Let your mind wander back to the much cherished counsels of a loving father, and remember what you are today. Though you may for the present fill your station in society, for time is as inevitable as fate when your brilliancy will, like a flash, depart, leaving you a stranded wreck—desolate, forgotten and lost; so embrace the opportunity and enjoy life and happiness longer. If you claim to be a man, act your part manly. Do not console yourself with the thought that Nature will help itself, for in doing so you not only fan the flame, but wreck Nature and yourself. Remember, "Large oaks from little acorns grow." "Little ills germinate fatal diseases."

Middle-aged Men,

married or single, who are prematurely old as a result of excesses or youthful follies, and who are troubled by too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and finding a deposit of ropy sediment in the urine, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin or milkish hue, and again changing to a dark or torpid appearance, causing nervous debility and loss of Vitality. Remember, this is the second stage of Seminal Weakness. In all such cases a perfect cure is guaranteed, and a radical restoration of the Genito-Urinary Organs. All interviews and letters are sacredly confidential. Parties at a distance may receive treatment by sending full description, and sent by express, if full description of case is given; but one personal interview in all cases preferred. Patients treated by mail or express. Call early and avoid crowding. Office hours: 9 A. M. to 8 P. M.; Sundays, 10 A. M. to 3 P. M.

This evening, at 8 o'clock, a performance will be given in the Theatre Comique, and the boys will give a good account of themselves. Who knows but what Victoria has some Billy Birches or Emersons? Admission, 25 cents.

COLE'S CIRCUS.

The know-everything Colonist in trying to correct The Times' assertion anent the circus, is farther from the truth than ever. As regards the customs charges they amount to about $600, a rather insignificant amount. One of the real causes of the circus not coming is the lack of transportation, the only available boat at present on the Sound being the Emma Hayward, and she is too small. Will our esteemed contemporary feel satisfied now that we have explained a second cause?

TURNING THE TABLES.

A San Francisco dispatch of the 25th inst. to the Portland newspapers states that the first shipment by the Canadian Pacific from that city, consisting of eleven car loads of miscellaneous goods, would leave the Bay City on Friday by the Victoria steamer leaving that port on Friday. Should this be correct, the incoming steamer, the Mexico, will have over 120 tons of freight on board to pass over the Canadian all-rail route.

THE POODLE DOG SALOON.

A Heavy Fine Imposed—An Appeal Likely to Take Place.

At the Police Court to-day, Mr. Johnson delivered judgment in the case against James Seeley, who was charged with carrying on a retail liquor license business at the Poodle Dog saloon, Yates street, without a license. The magistrate said that the offence was proved beyond doubt.

The defence is that Messrs. Hamm & Marboeuf hold a license for the Poodle Dog Restaurant, and that the defendant is their agent and manager and has fitted up the saloon in a building which communicates internally with the premises for which the license was granted. A license was granted about a year ago by the licensing magistrate to Messrs. Hamm & Marboeuf to sell wines and liquors with meals at the restaurant, the premises now called the Poodle Dog saloon being then and long afterwards occupied as a fish shop, and about a month ago the defendant fitted up this saloon and cut a door through from a room behind the bar room to a rear room of the restaurant. The license for the restaurant was produced. The defendant states, through counsel, that he pays Hamm & Marboeuf $100 per month out of the profits of the saloon and keeps the rest. That means, in my opinion, that he pays them $100 a month for the unlawful privilege of selling liquor under their license.

The defence fails at every point. It is not proved that Seeley was a subordinate of Hamm & Marboeuf—quite the contrary. He has carried on business on premises not included in the license, and his business has been one for which the license was never granted. A retail liquor license is granted only by a bench of magistrates, and both the person and the premises must be expressly licensed. The receipt issued by the city collector and entitled "Retail Liquor License," has no validity as a license, except so far as it is covered by a grant from the magistrate.

The defendant seems, in this matter, to have made a deliberate attempt to set at naught the authority of the licensing magistrates As he could afford to pay $100 a month for the privilege of committing the offence, he cannot complain of having to pay a penalty of $200 upon conviction. The penalty must be paid forthwith or levied by distress. I may also point out that unless the saloon be immediately closed a fresh penalty will be incurred every day.

GENERAL SHERMAN,

One of the Most Successful Generals of the Century—A Brief Biography.

William Tecumseh Sherman, now in our midst, was born in Lancaster, Ohio, in the year 1820. He received a liberal education and at the age of 16 entered West Point Military Academy. In 1840 he graduated and entered the U. S. army and was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant. A few years later he moved to California and entered into banking business. On the breaking out of the Rebellion in 1861 he was commissioned captain and took part in the battle of Bull Run. In 1862 was appointed to the command of a division under General Grant and acted with great bravery at the battle of Shiloh. After various ups and downs he was charged with the command of the Federal army in Georgia, and began his famous march from Atlanta to the sea through the enemy's country. The distance is 290 miles, which the gallant General accomplished in 23 days, and Savannah fell into his hands. After this, in conjunction with Gen. Grant, measures were taken for the submission of the Confederate Generals Lee and Johnston, which was speedily done and marked the closing actions of the war. Gen. Sherman was promoted to Lieut.-General in 1866, and succeeded Gen. Grant as General in 1869. He is at present on the retired list, having been succeeded by General Phil. Sheridan, otherwise known as "Little Phil." General Sherman is a great favorite with all and is one of the few Generals that have kept aloof from politics. This is his second visit to Victoria. On Tuesday morning he leaves for the east via the C.P.R.

CASSIAR!

Mr. John Grant Triumphantly Elected.

Notwithstanding the efforts put forth by the government to secure the defeat of Mr. John Grant by trotting out Mr. Dempster and thereby springing a contest on the district when it was known that it would be impossible for Mr. Grant to visit the district, he has been elected by a majority of 3. It is true the majority is a small one, but when it is remembered that McDame creek did not record its vote in consequence of there being no arrangement made for recording the vote, said to be about a dozen, and to be a unit for Mr. Grant, he is certainly to be congratulated on his victory. Had he visited the district while the contest was pending and resorted to the base tactics adopted by his opponents, his majority would have been larger than it was in 1882, when the vote stood 39 for Grant and 18 for W. V. Brown.

SET AT LIBERTY.

The larks imported by the St. George's Society, through the kindness of Mr. Campbell, were liberated this morning and were placed in charge of Mr. Smith on Beacon Hill, and it is hoped the birds will not be molested by persons wishing to try their skill with the gun. When set at liberty the birds—21 in number—flew away in a lively manner, and gave no sign of having been injured by their long captivity. One of them, which appeared dull and spiritless, was retained, and after being resuscitated will be permitted to join its comrades. The public will be aiding St. George's Society in about the only way they can assist them, by refraining from injuring the birds which have been set free. The killing of one or two of them may be the means of defeating the whole enterprise. The success of the society will be conducive to the happiness of everybody, for it can scarcely be possible that a being lives who does not feel a thrill of pleasure when he hears the melody of a lark; and for that reason all are equally interested in protecting them.

WINNIPEG'S LOSS, VICTORIA'S GAIN.

Says the Winnipeg Free Press of the 24th inst.: "Mr. A. C. Flumerfeldt, who starts for his new home in British Columbia to-morrow, was on Sunday afternoon presented with a beautifully illuminated farewell address on behalf of Grace Church Sunday school, of which he has been secretary-treasurer for some years. The superintendent, Mr. S. R. Parsons, in presenting the address expressed his deep regret at the loss of one who had been one of the foremost workers of the school, and who had been connected with it for seven years. Rev. A. Langford, pastor of the church, also spoke in terms of appreciation of Mr. Flumerfeldt's services, and expressed the conviction that his loss would be the gain of the place which is to be his future home. Mr. Flumerfeldt made a suitable reply." Mr. Flumerfeldt will arrive in Victoria to-morrow evening.

FROM THE NORTH.

Further News from Alaska and Cassiar by the Ancon.

The Ancon, Capt. Carroll, arrived from Alaska at 9 a. m. to-day. The news, in addition to what was telegraphed us yesterday, is very meagre. The Chinamen who were from the Treadwell mine came down on the Ancon, and will land at Port Townsend. They number about ninety. With few exceptions the contracts with the Chinese had expired, and they are anxious to leave the country. The mill is now being worked by Siwashes and a few white men. The Ancon took them over to Douglas Island, where they packed their traps and came away. There is now only one Chinaman left in the neighborhood of Juneau or Douglas Island—a baker—and he will go next steamer.

DRIVEN AWAY

THE EXCURSIONISTS,

numbering about ninety, returned on the Ancon, and will mostly depart for the east from Sound ports. They were delighted with the trip, and promise to sound its praises all over the continent. The Hudson river with its highlands, the thousand islands of the St. Lawrence, or the mountainous grandeur of Georgian Bay and Lake Superior, all sink into utter insignificance in comparison with the indescribable beauties of the northern coast. Several miners

FROM CASSIAR

—B. N. Lowe, Donald Moore and Fred. Wells—came down on the steamer from Wrangel. They report mining matters unchanged in that region. On Dease creek, Ogden and Wilson were doing well, making perhaps $7 or $10 per day. Foster & Co. were also making wages. on Thibert Creek little money had been made. The Berry Gulch drain (Sullivan's) had not cleaned up since spring, but it looked well, and the indications were that it would pay handsomely. On Mosquito Creek, Thiberts, Mowe and Moore, sold their claim, and prospects were better than ever. The miners on McDame's Creek are mostly Chinese, and they all seem to be doing well. The Old Discovery claim was reported to have done better than ever before, and Pat Doyle was feeling better as the season advanced. The report of is authenticated from Salmon river, one of the tributaries of the upper Yukon. A letter to Mr. Healey, of Chilcoat, which was read by our informant, states that five men in fourteen days panned out $2,500. The provisions of the party giving out and the water rising, two of the men came out for a fresh supply, the other three continuing on their prospecting down the Yukon. One of the two who came out got 13 ounces in the two days on the same bar. These diggings are in British territory and will undoubtedly attract many miners next summer.

HOME AGAIN.

Mr. J. B. Ferguson's Visit to the East—What He Saw and Says.

Mr. J. B. Ferguson, manager for the B. C. P. & Stationery Company, arrived home on Wednesday evening from an extended tour of the east. Mr. Ferguson was absent about six weeks, during which time he visited Chicago, Detroit, Toronto, Montreal, Boston, New York and Buffalo, where he purchased a stock of goods specially for this market, such as Victoria hitherto never imported. The stock has been selected by Mr. Ferguson personally, at figures and on terms that will enable him to offer bargains hitherto undreamt of. In due course the arrival of these goods will be heralded in The Times. Mr. Ferguson speaks in the highest terms of the Canadian all-rail route, the treatment accorded him by train officials, the equipment of the road and its general management, all of which he pronounces to be equalled by only one road that he has ever traveled on and excelled by none. While he says this much for the Canadian line he speaks in the warmest terms of the Northern Pacific and its obliging officials, who have ever given Victoria consignments their best attention.

A SEALER'S RETURN.

The steam schooner Dolphin, Capt. J. D. Warren, arrived from Behrings Sea last night. She reports the Alfred Adams in the straits, beating up, and the American schooner Annie also outside. Capt. Warren saw the Corwin towing the three schooners which she had seized, into port, and not caring to follow in the wake of the cutter put a little distance between it and the Dolphin. He knows nothing about the seizures, further than he can corroborate the statements of the other captains as to the distance from land—70 or 80 miles. When asked his opinion about the legality of the seizures, Capt. Warren said the contention of the Americans was extremely silly. During the whole of his cruise he never once sighted St. Paul or St. George, the islands leased to the Alaska Commercial Company, and which the American government apparently have taken under their protection. He was on the high seas, and the right of search, far less the right of seizure, does not there exist. The difficulty, he thought, would be quickly settled. The Dolphin, which left Victoria on the 18th of May, has had a remarkably successful trip, bringing back probably over 2,000 skins. All the schooners have done well. The season has been very favorable, the weather being clear and calm, with much less fog than usually prevails in those northern latitudes.

LADY BARBER.

One of the barber shops on Government street employs a young lady barber. The effect has been almost electrical. All the young men on Government street get shaved once a day, and a well-known grocer has shaved off his iron gray whiskers so that he can enjoy the rare luxury of having velvety fingers playing about his cheeks and under his chin. Speaking seriously, however, the young lady, a handsome brunette with dark eyes, is an excellent tonsorial artiste, and can shave or cut and dress hair with the best male barber in the city.

FOR SAN FRANCISCO.

The Queen of the Pacific sailed about 4 o'clock—having been delayed several hours beyond her regular time taking on salmon—for San Francisco. She had the following passengers from Victoria: Mrs Gorham, W D Shain and wf, Geo F Pierce, Mrs D W Watson, Justin Chenoweth, Louis de Cotton, Mrs Maude Moore, Mrs C Raggazoni, Mr and Mrs J C Smith, Miss S Smith, C Henderson and wf, W F Marvin.

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH.

Preaching services at the usual hours to-morrow. Morning subject: "Judas going to his own place." In the evening the pastor will preach the second of the series on "The five chief duties of man;" subject: "Man's duty to himself."

SKEENA SALMON.

The steamer Maude, Capt. Wm. Meyer, arrived from Smith's Inlet at 9:30 this forenoon, with 4650 cases of salmon, from Cunningham's cannery. The cargo was transferred to the Queen of the Pacific at the outer wharf.

The German bark Heinrich Bauden, from Siberia, arrived in the roads at two o'clock, seeking.

A QUARTZ MILL.

Mr. Chas. Henderson, the mining expert, and representing the Pavilion Mountain Mining Co., (the Foster ledge) left to-day for San Francisco, to purchase machinery for a ten stamp mill complete. The company, recently formed to operate this valuable mine, have prospected it sufficiently to feel certain, and are now going to work the vein with vigor and a determination to make it a success. They have ample capital, a rich and inexhaustible mine, and with experienced men in charge it must succeed.

A RAILWAY RUMOR.

The Union Pacific, according to "reliable authority," has obtained control of the O. R. & N. lines and will operate them in conjunction with their lines. There is a color of truth to the rumor, and there can be little doubt that Puget Sound will be the theatre of lively times in railroading during the next ten years.

LOOK OUT FOR DAMIANA.

OUR FINE STREETS AND FAST DRIVING.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—I believe that city councillors have no privileges over the rest of the citizens—except of course to get an axe ground. Therefore, why is Councillor Barnard allowed to drive through the streets beyond the regulation pace? Yesterday he drove down Douglas street as rapid as a fast horse could trot, certainly 12 miles an hour, and nearly drove over three children and a lady, and then did not even pull up or look round.
